

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A cellular phone includes (a) a memory storing first data indicative of predetermined sites, and (b) a controller which receives second data from a base station which second data indicates where the cellular phone is, compares the thus received second data to the first data, and stops an operation of the cellular phone, if said cellular phone is located at the predetermined sites indicated by the first data.